Additional Notes or Information

We are continuously recruiting new volunteers to meet the needs of the children in the Guardian ad Litem program, that is why we have emphasized a media campaign as a tool for recruitment. All of our activities are focused on the needs of the children, which require recruiting more volunteers, retaining the volunteers already in the program and recognizing the significant impact these volunteers have on the lives of these children and the community as a whole. Statistically, these children fare better in life if they are paired with a volunteer. Many of us became volunteers due to the exposure of the need through the Impact 100 grant process and we hope others are similarly inspired to answer the call.
